Instructions

Do this survey on 5 people from each of the categories. Five of these should be staff, parents or students of your school or center and 5 should be public (not part of your group). Note down on the survey what type of public is being surveyed. Use a separate survey form for each person surveyed as this will make it easier to tabulate the survey.

You should have received 3 different pictures along with this survey. These should be marked A, B, and C. Take these and neatly paste them to stiff paper or card board. These are the illustration cards you will use to do the survey. The procedure would be, show board A, ask the question, write down the answer, show board B, etc. After you have done all 3 boards, ask the rest of the questions on the survey.

Make sure you record all data given by the person being surveyed as this will be very important in determining the final illustration style for the new materials.

Thank you!

1) A) A boy and a girl talking but the style is goofy and they both look like fallen apart and falling down around them a little

B) The Simpsons w/o the goofy hair style — which I don't mind because the Simpsons are quite popular w/ kids ...

C) I see that it's comm. basically the same idea as the other one — a boy & a girl at a table comm. The style looks like older style illustration.

D) (similar content) A boy and a girl talking. Reminds me of an illustration I did from the "starfruit" story. I like the simplicity and the close to my reality of the illustrated characters

2) D

3) I don't know — that any of the illustrated styles shown here would be — the reason that I would become interested in buying the book.

Because I would buy a book on the basis of whether I ~~was~~ liked the illustrations and because my ~~son~~ likes the Simpsons — I might buy it because of illus... style #2

4) Style B - its because it looks like the Simpsons who are commercially viable

Style D - its simple, it communicates and its close to my reality

5) Style D - their arms & legs are just a tad too skinny

Rhea Leathers — Teacher

1. A. Looks like an student helping another student. They look happy & like, high interest

B. (Laugh) I don't know. They look kind of like they're doing TR's or something - they're staring at each other. They don't have the interest the other pictures did.

C. (Laugh) Um... (Con Lag) They look like they're talking. It reminds me of breaktime - they're sitting there & chit-chatting.

D. These look like 2 older students talking about something. Just having a conversation.

2. (Con Lag) D looks - the most professional, but the children in A look like in HIGH interest and really into what they're doing -- I think A would be the kind - (Laugh) Definitely not.

3. (Con Lag) (Ponder all 4 a while) I don't know. For some reason A just looks like strong interest, but D is --11.

most professional job.

4 A — just the expression & the way the kids looked caught my eye. The actual drawing style is simple —
D — it's very professional — it looks like some time was put into it making the kids look upset.

5. A — it is real simple - it could use more
D — The girl facial expression could look more ... intent — interested in what they're doing. The boy looks like he's just sitting there.

Jim Clark — Parent

1. A 2 kids sitting at a table

B Not anything having to do with education

C Bright children

D Case then look case.

2. D

3. D

4 It look normal

5. The only outport is that there no it like for white people -- if some going to have children not lead to have one of them an ethnic race.

Courtney Spilka. Parent

1. A. It looks like a cartoon. One kid talking and the others listening.

B. (Laugh) Uh... They look like they're not there — they're just staring like they're hypnotized. They're not really communicating.

C. Hmm... One kid talking to the other one and using his hands to explain something. The other kids not really confronting — sitting w/ the edge of his feet on the ground, ~~not~~ I'm not sure.

D. Now these look more like real people and they're there. 2 kids talking about something.

2) Probably D

3) Probably D

4) B is more realistic. The other ones look like cartoon & not real. B & C look like the guys are hypnotized.

5. I can't really find anything that does. I can't find any entry points. She looks like a kind sitting there talking w/ their feet tucked.

Note: These look like those guys that are on T.V. — that show carter show. (B)
