

Tel: EG 323652

Friday, June 24, 1994

30p

Now other groups back off cult's fete

CONTROVERSY this week continued to cloud tomorrow's Saint Hill summer fete.

Other groups have now denied links with the Church of Scientology event after Queen Victoria Hospital last week refused to accept cult money from the proceeds.

Advertisements and flyers pushed through East Grinstead letter boxes say the fete, with John Travolta topping the bill, will be opened by Radio Mercury.

But the station's programme director, Martin Campbell, denied it would attend the event at the organisation's headquarters.

He stressed: "Radio Mercury has no involvement whatsoever with the Church of Scientology or the fete."

Mr Campbell said Radio Mercury was not contacted by Scientologists but had spoken with fete organiser Liz Dalrymple, who acknowledged it was wrong to use the company's name.

He said the station was billed as appearing after a former Radio Mercury presenter, Chris Oxlade, agreed to attend the fete.

Mr Campbell added: "The agreement was between him and the Church of Scientology. It's nothing to do with us at all."

The Courier last week disclosed that the Queen Victoria Hospital in East Grinstead was "appalled" by advertisements saying money raised would be in aid of its burns unit.

A spokesman for Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital, said to be receiving donations, denied links.

He said: "We did receive a gift from the Church of Scientology last year. But we have reviewed the situation and decided it's not in our best interests to be associated with them. We told them we will decline to accept anything this year."

St John Ambulance officer Roger Leonard, of Felbridge and East Grinstead division, said the volunteer organisation would welcome donations.

"We've no reason to doubt their generosity," he said. "I know they have had a pretty rough ride but maybe that's to do with ignorance and intolerance."

Fete organiser Liz Dalrymple said: "QVH and Great Ormond Street were happy last year with their involvement and with the funds they received.

"This year all groups were told we would like to donate to them. There seemed to be no problem so for them to pull out at the last minute is uncharitable, not to say unkind."

● See also page 8.

Sad loss of cash for Queen Vic

I WAS very saddened by the decision of Mr Jeffrey Park, chairman of the Queen Victoria Hospital NHS Trust, to turn down our offer of fundraising (report and letter, June 17).

As the hospital has been glad to accept our donations in the past, it came as a shock that Mr Park had changed the policy, denying not only Scientologists, but all those who attend our fete, the opportunity to support the hospital.

I have been reassured that the medical staff at the hospital do have a policy of non-discrimination and give their highest standards of health care and nursing to all patients regardless of creed, race or religion. It is a great pity that the management staff do not seem to follow a similar non-discriminatory policy.

Scientologists were among those who supported the Queen Victoria in its recent administrative crises.

We were glad to do so as we appreciate the work done for us by the hospital medical staff.

It is sad, when human rights and tolerance are becoming the norm, that my contribution to my local hospital is restricted by a narrow-minded and poor-spirited decision.

(Mrs) E DALRYMPLE
Saint Hill Manor
East Grinstead

□ WHAT irresponsible behaviour by chairman Jeffrey Park. A communication problem exists at the Queen Vic, if some of the management knew last year and this year, but others who should have, did not.

Surely most people will regard this fiasco as discourteous, irresponsible and a betrayal of trust to QVH management and the local community?

J.L. HODGSON
Cantelupe Road
East Grinstead

□ DURING the past seven years I have been closely associated with many Scientologists and their families, through my work as a peripatetic teacher, and I have only found them to be friendly, kind, sympathetic, honest and hard working — quite normal in fact.

I am extremely disappointed that the QVH should have been swayed into rejecting much needed fund-raising money from the Saint Hill fete. Surely the health service can't afford to be this fussy?

NAME and ADDRESS SUPPLIED
Forest Row

□ I HAVE always been an admirer of the Queen Victoria Hospital and in particular its work in burns treatment in the past.

It is extraordinary that I will not be able to contribute to its welfare because of Mr Park's comments. He seems more interested in the politics and PR of the affair, than the rights and wrongs.

M. CHAMPNESS
Eden Vale
East Grinstead

East Grinstead Observer

15p where sold

Wednesday 29 June, 1994

V F D VERIFIED FOR DISTRIBUTION
BY MAIL
15 JULY 1994

EVIL CULT STORE WVY BROTHIER!

A GRIEF-stricken man has accused East Grinstead's sinister Scientology cult of stealing his brother from his family.

Heartbroken John Phelan says his brother Tony is now a virtual prisoner of the organisation, slammed by a British judge as "corrupt, immoral brainwashers."

This week officials at the cult's European HQ Saint Hill Manor, East Grinstead, refused to discuss the case with the Observer.

Now the anguished Phelan family have threatened to step up their campaign against the Church of Scientology, unless Tony is "released" to them.

"We're trying to make as much of a nuisance of ourselves as possible until the Scientologists let him out," said John.

"This evil cult stole my brother from his family, and we want him back."

John Phelan, a single man in his 30s, took up with the cult in 1989, when he was emotionally vulnerable and consumed with grief over the death of his mother.

He said Tony, a single man in his 30s, took up with the cult in 1989, when he was emotionally vulnerable and consumed with the cult's other premises.

He said Tony was a changed person coming out with "weird things," and spending his money on courses at Saint Hill and the cult's other premises.

He said Tony was under an "evil form of mind control." And John claims there have been threats of unspecified reprisals against the family for talking to the press about the cult.

But in a letter to an Irish newspaper, Scientology officer Gerard Ryan says the allegations of "brainwashing" and "Tony being a prisoner" are "nonsense".

The family, from Tip-

Scientologists accused of wrecking family life

Cult is evil

I SEE that that disgusting evil cult based up at Saint Hill have been up to their old tricks again, with false advertising about their summer fair.

Surely it is about time that the Scientologists and all of their wicked off shoots ie: Greenfields School and their bookshop were run out of town.

Clear off Cult members you're not welcome in this town.

Name and Address withheld by request.

letters to: The Editor,

East Grinstead Courier

Tel: EG 323652

Friday, July 15, 1994

30p

Second Shuubo for Saint Hill

By David Thompson

ST JOHN Ambulance is refusing to accept donations from the Church of Scientology.

The announcement is another rebuff for the cult after Queen Victoria Hospital, and Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital also turned down proceeds from the cult's recent Saint Hill summer fete.

John Mills, communications director of the volunteer organisation's London head office, said flatly: "We do not want to give credibility to an organisation of which we do not approve. It could bring the good name of St John Ambulance into disrepute."

He stressed: "We will not accept donations from any religious organisation not recognised by the British Council of Churches.

"It is an easy rule to follow. There is no grey area, the Church of Scientology is not recognised."

•We do not want to give credibility to an organisation of which we do not approve.

Advertisements and flyers for the annual Scientology event on June 25 said it was in aid of St John Ambulance and the two hospitals, which have already denied links and refused money.

The promotions also said it would be opened by Radio Mercury, but the station strenuously denied links with the fair. It later emerged that a former station presenter would be attending.

Mr Mills added: "We are not happy that the Church of Scientology used our name on promotional leaflets. We wrote to them saying we did not want any publicity associated with them.

"We gave first aid cover at the Saint Hill fete, as we would for anyone without question, and would ask for donations to cover our expenses."

He added that the East Grinstead and Felbridge division had accepted money in the past but were not fully aware of the overall policy.

Fete organiser Liz Dalrymple said:

"Roger Leonard, of the Felbridge and East Grinstead division of St John Ambulance, was quoted in a previous Courier article saying, 'We've no reason to doubt their generosity, I know they have had a pretty rough ride but maybe that's to do with ignorance and intolerance'.

"We have been raising money for the St John Ambulance for many years at Saint Hill, and have enjoyed a long warm association with the local division.

"The money was raised in good faith, and given in good faith by many people who, like us, support the good work of the St John brigade and we will ensure that the brigade receives the money. To do otherwise would be an inappropriate re-allocation of charitable funds raised in their name."

•THE Hubbard College of Administration, a management training project which uses techniques developed by Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard, has celebrated its first anniversary with a champagne reception.

See Page 13

WITH THE COURIER

YOU & YOUR money

Financial expert Alan Bond advises

Pack your plastic

Take the right money cards when holidaying in Britain, then it won't cost you money to draw cash. Rates vary so ask your bank (or building society) for details. This is how it works.

Cash card - to charge if you use it in a machine belonging to your own bank or a bank with which yours has an arrangement. For example, Barclays' customers can also use Bank of Scotland, Royal Bank of Scotland and Lloyds machines without charge. Otherwise you may have to pay - Halifax customers using non-Halifax Link machines are charged 60p.

Credit card - there's usually a handling charge, typically 1.5 per cent (minimum £1.50). Or you may be charged interest from date of withdrawal. Credit card - as with cash cards. Also, when you pay your supermarket bill with Switch or Visa for extra £10 to £50 and give it to you in cash.

Water meters

Q Could we save money on water bills by having a water meter installed?

A Without it neither your water charge is based mainly on yourutable value: with a meter, it's on the amount of water used. You should benefit from metering. If you're single or a couple without children in a highly rated house, installing a meter usually costs up to £150. You then pay 1.1p for one flush of the loo, 3.5p for a shower, 3.5p for one dishwasher cycle, 9.5p for a bath, 9.5p for one washing machine cycle, and 6.35p for one hour's use of the hose pipe.

Maternity Pay

Q I'm a part-time shopworker on average earnings of £50 a week and am expecting a baby. In mid-November, will I be entitled to Statutory Maternity Pay (SMP)?

A Most women expecting babies on or after October 16, 1994 will get SMP of 90 per cent of earnings for the first six weeks, and £52.50 for up to 12 weeks. They must have been working in the same job for at least 26 weeks and earning at least £57 a week. On £50 a week, you do not qualify. But do ask your social security office or CAB about other benefits.

Have you heard?

When opening a savings account at the post office, you now have to give proof of identity (driving licence, passport, photo-identity card, pension or benefit book) and proof of address.

See page 12 for details.

course and the literature. At the second session, I asked the tutor if the course gave me a proper certificate. He said no, but I would be able to contact Scientologists. It was only then that I realised who they were.

"I feel like I have been conned. I honestly thought they were nice, but they were just out to get my money," she says.

Bethara was not alone in experiencing the downside of cults. Jackie, 32, couldn't believe the change in her lawyer, David, when he returned from a business seminar a three day Landmark Education course.

When he came home he was in cloud (no land), his eyes were dilated and his speech was slurred. He was the person I knew best. I began to suspect he'd been brainwashed by a cult. He said he'd been looking at our relationship and questioning whether he loved me. He got all white and shaky when I used words he had been told were taboo, such as "mistrust".

Jackie contacted a cult-breaking organisation who suggested ways of getting through to him. After persistent talking and reasoning, David began to question what he'd learnt at Landmark Education, which turned out to be an official of the counterfeited EST cult. Soon his companion wife off and he became deeply depressed.

"Eventually I got him back," says Jackie. "But it was very frightening. Ian Howarth has the last word on the dangers of being stuck into the cult culture: "Some members actually call it up in psychiatric wards," he says. It's a chilling warning.

Emily Compston

Barbara Faal (left) was conned

time, she filled in a personality questionnaire in a newspaper and sent it off. This led to a £15 self-improvement course with the Hubbard Research Foundation, during which her trainer suggested she follow it up with a consulting course.

"My dream is to work with the SABC or with children and they said that if I did the course I could achieve that," she says. She paid out approximately £10 for some

Geoffrey was trained to counter criticism of Scientology

Lan Howarth of the cult

GULL

new style, old problem

Right - the Rev Moon with wife conduct a mass Moonie wedding. The approach is more subtle now - Scientology (above) to appeal to study group (below) to oppose it

Many sects have borrowed the '90s gospel of self-help, making them harder than ever to detect

TALKING POINT

You'd never guess what your Tattletales read about the Moonies and the Waco siege. You know that cults are sinister - so-called religions which target lonely, lost people and brainwash them. You think you're too sensible to fall under their spell. That's what Geoffrey thought. The 26-year-old insurance clerk from Bristol saw a personality questionnaire in his local newspaper and filed it out just for fun.

He posted the form and didn't think any more about it until he received a letter from a Research Foundation, inviting him to one of their meetings. It sounded like a research company, says Geoffrey. I went along to see what it was all about. They were offering a course called Success Through Communication which cost £90. I thought it would help me with my work, so I joined up for it.

The people running it were very easy going, he recalls. They all seemed to have good jobs and had an air of success about them. They were always so interested in me. There were long periods of study where students would sit opposite a trainee and repeat the same phrase over and over again. "I now know that it was the first stage of hypnosis. It makes you more suggestible so that you go along with what's being said," says Geoffrey (not his real name).

He found himself signing up for more and more courses. In six months I gave them £7,200. My parents kept on at me to stop going but I was so involved with the group.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.

It's all very clever. Part of my training taught me how to deal with opponents of Scientology," says Geoffrey. This involved lying, but they called it "telling acceptable truths". If anyone asks £7,200, my parents kept me to stop but I was so involved with the group.

The organisation that Geoffrey had joined, the Hubbard Research Foundation, was in fact the Church of Scientology, one of the many cults using new "marketing" ploys to ensnare recruits.